COTTON.

PROSPECTS OF THE PRESENT CROP—CONSUMPTION OF THE PAST YEAR—REQUIREMENTS OF MANUFACTURERS—WILL THE CROP OF 1873 RAISE OR DEPRESS THE MARKET.

The cotton year ends with the 31st of August, and we now have from the Commercial Chronicle the results of the cotton year for the United States, which produce this year more than two-thirds of the cotton consumed in Europe and America.

The entire crop of the Union for 1872 was three million nine hundred and thirty thousand bales, or one billion eight hundred and twenty nine million nine hundred and twenty thousand and twenty-three pounds of cotton, the average weight of bales having been four hundred and sixty four pounds.

The export to Europe was two million six hundred and eighty-three thousand bales—The home consumption of the United States was one million two hundred and one thousand bales, and possibly fifty thousand bales more from stock accumulated.

In the early part of September, 1872, the visible supply of cotton on land and sea was one million five hundred and eighty-seven thousand bales. In September, 1873, the visible supply had fallen to one million four hundred and seventeen thousand bales, a reduction of one hundred and seventy thousand bales. There has also been some reduction in the stocks at the mills in both Europe and America, which at a moderate estimate, we may set at one hundred and thirty thousand bales.

Upon this computation the reduction of stock during the past year, will amount to three hundred thousand bales.

During the last five years there has been a slight increase in the production of cotton in Brazil, but a decline to counterbalance it in other countries which furnish one third of the supply.

India, the largest producer after the United States, remains nearly stationary at a million and a half of bales. Brazil gains but little.—The United States alone makes rapid progress, and from the figures before us we may safely deduce the following conclusions:

That the manufactures of Europe and America require yearly a quantity of cotton equal to the whole amount raised in the United States in 1872, viz., bales	3,930,000
And this requirement is in addition to the amount received by them from all other countries. They require also the whole amount of the reduction of stock by consumption in 1872, viz: bales	300,000
To this we may add an amount equal to the annual increase of manufacture for the coming year, viz., at least five per cent on the consumption of 1872 and '73, bales	200,000
	4,430,000

We thus have for the supply required from the crop of the United States to cover consumption and keep up stocks for the current year, a crop of four million five hundred and thirty thousand bales, or an increase fifteen per cent. upon the crop of 1872. A slight addition to this amount should be made for the acceleration of the crop from India. Five years since the cotton of India was water borne in sailing vessels around the Cape of Good Hope. These vessels were four or five months on their way. Nearly the whole crop is now carried by steamers through the Suez canal, and its arrival is accelerated more than three months. As the average shipment from India yearly is a million and a half of bales, this acceleration has in four years added a quarter's product, or three hundred and seventy five thousand bales to the supply of Europe, and as it has affected the past year we may safely add seventy thousand bales to the amount needed from America, and set the annual requirement of manufactures at four million six hundred thousand bales.

The price of cotton depends to a great extent upon the excess of the crops over the amount required for consumption, or upon the deficiency, if any, in the supply.

It depends also more or less upon the rapidity with which it reaches the market and increases the stock. If then the crop of 1872 does not come forward with undue speed, or exceed four million six hundred thousand bales, we may reasonably anticipate that its price will not fall materially below the prices of the past season.

A few years since a crop in this country of ... [illegible]

... his best custom—custom that he can look after among people he knows something about. The question then arises, "Why do merchants waste money in this kind of advertising?" Perhaps the merchants could best tell us if they would.—[American Newspaper Reporter.

NORTHERN MAINE.

A correspondent of the Boston Journal writes the following from Katahdin Iron works, dated Sept. 26th:

The township derives its name from the interesting manufacture established in it. Though not a matter of great importance, yet its designation is rather unfortunate, as it gives rise to the idea that the town is in the neighborhood of Mount Katahdin, and forty miles by consequence deeper in the wilderness than it really is. In point of fact, the furnace is but eighteen miles from the Mild station of the Piscataquis Division of the European and North American Railway. The branch contemplated from that station to the Brownville slate quarries will reduce the haulage by road to twelve miles. The spur should be extended to this point. The iron freight outward will exceed three thousand tons per annum at the present capacity of the furnace, and the return freight will also be considerable. Both will increase largely as the manufacture goes on demonstrating itself to be a great success. The supplies for lumbermen, moreover, transported by this point are several hundred tons per year. There is a very large amount of spruce and pine lumber on the river (the west branch of the Pleasant) above, for the sawing of which there is abundant water power in surplus at the furnace, and which would furnish important freight. The country round about bears a heavy growth of birch, maple, beech, poplar, cedar and ash, never yet cut over, and available for all the various hardwood manufactures. The display of forest colors at this time passes all language to describe. The soil is much of it excellent. A hundred tons of hay are raised on a clearing near the iron works. Potatoes and the small grains thrive abundantly. Corn does well, except on the lowlands, where there is some liability to frost, now that the country is so little cleared. In short, on this tributary of the Piscataquis river, as on many others, are large capacities for population remaining undeveloped for lack of a few miles of railroad extension. The manufacture of iron into pigs from the ore is carried on successfully in spite of the considerable transportation by road, on account of the highly favorable conditions offering in other respects.

The ore for example, which lies upon the slope of a mountain, in the form of iron rust, the deposit varying from one to ten feet thick is dug up as easily for the most part as compact earth. It is delivered at the furnace, by contract, at two dollars per ton. It nets sixty per cent. At the furnaces of Western Massachusetts and Connecticut the ore costs seven dollars per ton and nets about forty per cent. A large tract of the ore has just been discovered further up the mountain than the deposit hitherto worked. The quality of the iron turned out is such that it is being used for the manufacture of car wheels, machinery and fine castings requiring great strength. Wood for charcoal costs at the furnace two dollars a cord. The country in all directions will yield out the average twenty-five cords per acre. The present capacity of the furnace is ten tons a day. The proprietor, D. W. Davis, Jr., Esq., of Portland, purposes rebuilding on a larger scale next year.

Mr. Davis has given no little time to the exploration of the iron deposits of Aroostook county, north of this point. His judgment is that nowhere else in the country do so favorable conditions offer for the production of charcoal iron as in that region. He has traced along a belt of many miles ores of superior quality lying on the surface, with the best of limestone close at hand for flux, and hard wood forests of gigantic growth covering the entire face of the country for charcoal. This territory when cleared is much of it valuable for settlement. Some of it is equal to Lancaster county, Pa., or the best farming districts in New York. All that is wanted is railroad accommodation. If only the Eastern and Boston and Maine railroads could be made to realize how much they might do for themselves by joining their strength to develope this region, their wants would in at last a single day longer. The directors of these roads have wasted money enough already to their welfare to build a railroad to the Canada line through as rich and beautiful a country here in Maine as lies beneath the sun. Settlers would go into this region in a stream if it only could be opened by rail. The lumber, hard and soft, that could be carried out would pay for the road. It seems wicked to have huge yellow birches, that are worth $40 per thousand for cabinet wood, rot down for want of carriage to market, and forests of poplar, so valuable for paper pulp, excelsior, boxes and other uses, rot down beside them, and with them forests of ship timber, and woods adapted to every use from shoe pegs to the keels of ships.

There is as fine statuary marble in Aroostook county as the world contains, distributed along the belt of Helderberg limestone running across the northern part of the State. Roofing slates also are abundant of different variety from the Brownville slates, of light blue color and of perfect rift. In short, this territory of Northern Maine is the best part of New England as regards natural resources and productive capacities. It calls loudly for a railroad. Boston, that is so deeply concerned in the development of any territory that will pay her large tribute, ought to see to it that a railroad is built without delay. H

HOW YOUNG MEN FAIL.—"There is Alfred Sutton home with his family to live on the old folks," said one neighbor to another. "It seems hard, after all his father has done to fit him for business, and the capital he invested to start him so fairly. It is surprising he has turned out so poorly. He is a steady young man, no bad habits, as far as I know; he has a good education, and was always considered smart, but he doesn't succeed in anything. I am told he has tried a number of different kinds of business, and sunk money every time. What can be the trouble with Alfred, I should like to know, for I don't want my boy to take his turn."

"Alfred is smart enough," said the other, "and has education enough, but he lacks the one element of success. He never wants to give a dollar's worth of work for a dollar of money, and there is no other way for a young man to make his fortune. He must dig if he would get gold. All the men that have succeeded, honestly or dishonestly, in making money have had to work for it, the sharpers sometimes the hardest of all. Alfred wishes to set his train in motion, and let it take care of itself. No wonder it soon ran off the track, and a smash up was the result. Teach your boy, friend Archer, to work with a will when he does work. Give him play enough to make him healthy and happy, but let him learn early that work is the business of life. Patient self-denying work is the price of success. Ease and indolence eat away not capital only, but worse still, all of man's nerve power. Present gratification tends to put off duty until to-morrow or next work. It is getting to be a care thing for the sons of rich men to get rich. Too often they squander in a half score of years what their fathers were a life time in accumulating. I wish I could ring it in the ears of every aspiring young man that work, hard work, of head and hands, is the price of success."—[Country Gentleman.

It is once more going the rounds of the press that a beetle is capable of lifting 15 times its own weight, while a man of ordinary muscular power is fully 100 times feebler. Why should man forever be brought into unfavorable comparison with beetles? Has it ever struck anybody how many beetles a man can lift? We are also told of the thousandth time that the flea, scarcely three hundredths of an inch in height, manages to leap, without difficulty over a barrier fully 500 times its own height. For a man, six feet is so unusually high leap. Imagine him jumping 3000 feet, nearly three-fifths of a mile! We shall imagine no such thing. It is well enough for a flea to jump. He never does anything else, except to make a dog's life a burden to him. He never leaves his foot-prints on the sands of time, or sounds the light guitar. He never hired himself out to turn a derrick in Chicago, or gave us the least assistance during the great fire. He has done nothing but jump 500 times his own altitude ever since he was first created, and will continue to do nothing else until his race becomes extinct. It is inexpressibly painful to us to be continually taunted with the fact that mankind are not fleas, ants, beetles or something of that sort.

Felix Pyat, in the Combat newspaper, supplies the following pen picture of Gambetta: "Gambetta," he says, "is very one horses, drinks, eats and sleeps with his comptoir of Macchiavelli. He puts him under his pillow as Alexander did Homer. He knows him by heart. If one has a heart when one knows Macchiavelli. Jacobin at Belleville and Girondist at Marseilles, in favor of Marat in Paris and M. Thiers at Aix, kind of cur bought to Mirabeau, who does not speak like Mirabeau, but who may die like him, and who assuredly will die like Marat; lawyer to the purest race, fine speaker, indifferent thinker, old mortier, a sworn irreconcilable sworn twice, as Deputy and as lawyer—This is Gambetta." Such a Radical to paint a Radical!"

The most appalling case of deafness on file of an asylum was that of an old lady who lives just across the street from the Navy Yard gate. The other day they fired a salute of thirteen guns. The old lady was observed to start and listen as the last gun was fired and then she exclaimed: "Come in!"

THE PANICS OF '57 AND '73

(From the N Y Evening Post.)

There is a good deal of encouragement, at the present crisis, to be got out of the panic in 1857 which resembles this in many respects, and particularly from the process of recovery, which was rapid and sure. What was done then may be done now Both were panics in which limited and special causes acting upon expanded credits, produced and deep and aggravated disasters. Both began in the early autumn, just as the moving of the crops required that all the financial and commercial machinery should be in working order and acting up to its fullest capacity — Happily the present revulsion culminated in a quiet suspension nearly a month earlier than that of 1857 giving just so much more time now for recovery before the close of navigation. That too was far more severe and sweeping in its effects, and as "resumption then meant resumption of payment in specie a much more powerful effort was required on the part of the metropolitan banks to draw in the needful stock than will now be demanded to accumulate greenbacks.

Nevertheless let us recall what happened and see how soon the result was achieved

The banks had been running so far through the year 1857 on the very inadequate average of about eleven millions of specie. In August it rose to thirteen millions From that time there was a decline, and soon a rapid drain of both depos its and specie till on the 14th of October, the banks suspended payment with less than eight millions in their vaults The interior banks without exception followed the example. But the weekly reports show that almost from the moment of suspension the banks began to gain in deposits and specie and in the brief period of fifty-nine days —on the 12th of December—the New York banks resumed specie payments with more than twenty six millions of specie in hand In January, as the process went on by its own momentum the stock had risen to thirty millions or nearly three times the average two ring-supply Specie rolled in from England and from all quarters then, as it does now, and as it always will when the banks of New York make a supreme effort for life—just as a great ocean wave rolls upon us the land when an earth quake heaves the coast of South America.

Now if recovery was so vigorous and rapid in specie times how much more easy and prompt will it be when the banks have here at home over three hundred and fifty millions of greenbacks to gather reserves from—an amount far exceeding the specie then existing in the whole country We may look confidently then to see the banks overstocked with greenbacks within the next sixty days and strong and abundant in all their resources

OUR FOREIGN TRADE

We copy the following statistics of the condition of our foreign trade from an article prepared by a correspondent of the N Y Times

Our imports from the 1st of January to the 1st of October 1873 show a falling off of $27,000 000 from those of the same period last year our exports an excess during the same period of over $48 000,000, an improvement in our favor in exact figures, of $75 871,479 for the first three quarters of the year 1873. Of specie the exports have been $41 522,021 in 1873 against $9 010 264 in 1872, and $09 7021 in 1871 This ratio of improvement will be daily increasing for the remaining quart The recent crisis has arrested imports except of coin to a very great extent while every day s news from Great Br tain and the Continen points to even larger takings of our breadstuffs than had been supposed The shortness of the wheat crop seems to be not only local but Continental. A carefully considered article in the London Saturday Review on The Wheat Crop estimates that England s deficit is probably 12 000 000, and that of France 6 000,000 or together 18 000 000 England the only buyer in the past year has imported from all other countries France included nearly 13,000 000 quarters of wheat The two countries now require that quantity, and fully 5,000 000 more b veen them The question is can this quan ity be ob ained? * It s too much, however to expect America to more than double her exportat on of last year It is improbable if not impossible, that she can so do L ther France or England must then go short There will be act ve competition between the merchants of the two nat ons wherever wheat is to be had, and the result of the competition will be to raise the prices Bread must be dear Whoever goes short, th s country (England) will not starve, but we shall have to p y a high price for our oat

Senator Sumner has written a letter to Mr Redpath stating that owing to the urgency of a great number of his friends who felt that at this early stage of convalescence it would be perilous for him to enter the work of the L cture he had with great reluctance determined to withdraw, and to cancel his lecture engagemen s

THE ROCKLAND MURDER TRIAL — A correspondent has describes the appearance of Miss Mank now on trial a Rockland for the murder of Dr Baker

Miss Mank is twenty seven years of age, of medium height, features neither handsome nor unbecomingly bright black eyes and brown hai Sli is now thin in the face and rather s ight in figure which may be partly the result of her imprisonment. She was dressed in a silk of small checked figure with a black silk polonaise trimmed with lace, jaunty hat and plume and black kid gloves. She wore a gold chain and held a fan which she used almost constantly She appeared self possessed and in good spirits her dress and manner being in striking contrast with her appearance at her preliminary examination During the County Attorney s opening she appeared more subdued in manner but bore the ordeal without evincing any emotion and at its close smiled and engaged in conversation with her counsel.

On Tuesday ten witnesses for the prosecution were examined including Dr Baker s housekeeper, Warren Mank, Jr., one of the two little boys who were the only inmates of the house at the time of the murder, except the prisoner several of the neighbors who were the first to visit the house on the morning after the homicide, the Coroner who held inquest and Dr Walker one of the two physicians who conducted the post-mortem examination.

The Mank lad testified to having seen Dr Baker go to the house the afternoon preceding the murder and after asking for the prisoner to go to the back door and try to get in and heard him say she (Lucy Ann) was up to some of her old tricks. Telling his aunt of this when he went in a short time after, the boy heard her say that he would find out what those old tricks were.

Dr Walker's testimony was the most important given. He stated that the lower wound in which the bullet entered between the 5th and 6th ribs at the point of their attachment to its sternum and passed through the heart and left lung and lodged under the 7th rib near the spinal column, would produce death in a very few seconds He believes that his wound was received first while the Doctor was standing and was the cause of his death. The skin around this wound was blackened but not burned. The second bullet entered between the second and third ribs, passed up the outside of the cavity of the chest and under the clavicle and into the side of the neck where it was found. Dr Walker believes that wound to have been received while the murdered man lay upon his back. The cuticle around this wound was burned off, indicating a close proximity of the weapon.

The wound generally pronounced the immediate cause, but quite sufficient, however, during the whirls the thread on a bobbin without the use of a person's hands, so even untutored a woman can operate by the inventor's instructions. Thus, as every lady knows, is a very important thing to her as it is very hard to do without this machine, and it not only does away with this trouble, but wind one-third more thread on a bobbin. DOMESTIC NEWS.

FROM NEW YORK.

THE BANKS AND THE BROKERS

NEW YORK, Oct. 7. The Times says financially that the number of banks that are now able to discount for their mercantile dealers is on the increase. There is a strong reluctance on the part of Wall st. bankers to return to the vicious practice of certifications for loans on demand of stock brokers. It is generally and strongly felt that the present crisis and its damaging lessons should be improved to reform the system of doing the [illegible] speculation business of the Stock Exchange.

THE NORTHERN PACIFIC.

Two agents of Berlin capitalists who were despatched to this country two years ago to examine the Northern Pacific Railroad made two reports, both concurring in the opinion that for some years after its completion the Company would be unable to pay the interest on its bonds, and agreed in advising European capitalists not to invest in it. The Tribune charges that these reports have hitherto been suppressed.

A NEW PRIMA DONNA.

Ilma Di Muraka, a celebrated Hungarian Prima Donna, made her first appearance in America last night at the Grand Opera House under Maretzek, in "La Sonnambula." She was warmly received and achieved a triumphant success.

THE ALLIANCE.

This is a busy day with the Evangelical Congress, three conferences being simultaneously in session all the morning. [illegible]

Lion Hall was so crowded that many ladies were compelled to stand.

THE THIRD TRIAL OF EDWARD S. STOKES commenced in the Oyer and Terminer Court this A. M., before Judge Davis. The Court was comfortably filled but the crowd was not so large as on former occasions. Stokes was brought into the Court at 10 30 o'clock, looking well, the only perceptible change being that his hair is a little more grey. He looked calm and confident, and was seated behind his counsel with his mother and sister. His counsel were Lyman Tremaine, Messrs. Dos Passos and Brainard, District Attorney Phelps and Assistant Attorney Russel for the prosecution.

Mr. Tremaine asked for adjournment to obtain presence of Drs. Tripler, Fisher and White, who testified on the former trials. But as Dr. Fisher was in Court the Judge refused the motion, saying Dr. White's former testimony could be used if necessary.

Mr. Tremaine then read a challenge to the array, setting forth that the Juror's panel was drawn contrary to the statute on the 10th of Sept., 1873, and that it was not drawn from the full panel as required by law; also that the panel from which it was drawn was selected from bankers, brokers and merchants, excluding mechanics, laborers, and other respectable classes of the community. District Attorney Phelps said he would be obliged to traverse the challenge and in order to allow time for preparation of the traverse, a recess was taken till 1 o'clock.

After the recess the District Attorney defended the selection of the panel. Mr. Tremaine replied, and after some remarks by Judge Davis who desired time to consider the question Tremaine was allowed to amend his challenge, and the Judge promised his decision to-morrow morning.

CHARGES AGAINST COMPTROLLER GREENE

A delegation of the Reform Association called on Mayor Havemeyer to-day and read a long specification of charges against Comptroller Greene charging him with paying to Dexter A. Hawkins over $7,000 for lobbying at Albany last year. Charging also that large sums of public money were paid out to [illegible] the legislation and for keeping Greene in office; that he was not able to discriminate between just and unjust claims, contesting all in the courts thereby entailing immense legal expenses upon the city. The Mayor in reply said that the charges were of a very serious character and he would ask Comptroller Greene to explain.

FIRES

Wagner's brush factory in Morrisania and residence adjoining were burned early this morning. Incendiary, not arrested.

While this and the Mount Vernon fires were raging an incendiary fired an [illegible] occupied building in Westfarms and it was burned to the ground. No arrest.

DISBANDING THE MODOCS

NEW YORK, Oct 8. A Washington special says that it is designed ultimately, or as soon as circumstances will permit to break up and dispose the Modocs by scattering them among other Indians on various reservations. THE RESERVE

Another despatch says Senator Cameron had a long interview with the President yesterday and reports that the latter as well as himself is opposed to drawing on the forty four million greenback reserve.

DISTRICT POLITICS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. The Republicans and Conservatives having put their respective candidates of the District of Columbia Legislative Assembly in the field, the temperance men also nominated a ticket in opposition to such of the candidates on either tickets as they cannot support. The German American citizens at a public meeting last night declared against supporting any candidate who has pledged himself to the "pernicious cause of so called temperance" and invite all German Americans to attend the mass meeting to take such steps in the premises as will best subserve their ends.

FOREIGN NEWS.

FRANCE

[illegible] PROJECT

PARIS, Oct. 8. It is reported that when the Assembly is asked to vote in favor of the restoration of monarchy and the elevation of Count de Chambord to the throne as King Henry V, M. Rouher will propose as a substitute that monarchical principles be established, but that it be left to the country to decide which monarchy is preferred.

THE BAZAINE TRIAL

In the Bazaine court martial to-day reading of Riviere's report was continued. Riviere proceeds to show that the means of communication between Metz and Paris were ample, and that Bazaine's refusal to combine his forces with the other armies in the field was criminal. The Marshal is accused of pursuing a personal policy by which the enemy profited. There is evidence that he even refused to assist in the effort made to provision Metz. Bazaine's inaction is attributed partly to hesitation, caused by the news from Sedan and Paris and partially to his secret negotiation with the enemy. Whatever government there was in France he should have fought for it instead of listening to overtures of the enemy receiving their agent and plotting the restoration of the Empire, he only thought of maintaining the army in good condition to play the political part he designed, had Bazaine done his duty by taking his army into the interior of France, leaving Metz to defend herself with a garrison which could subsist on resources of the surrounding country, Metz would have held out until an armistice, and Lorraine could never have been ceded.

Riviere continues: A foreign war was not enough, our unhappy country was condemned to the horrors of civil war, and what did Marshal Bazaine do then? He united with the enemy to overthrow the government of his country.

The report condemns the Marshal for failing to destroy the materials of war left at Metz while he was careful to destroy all correspondence which might compromise him self, for frequently receiving in person German officers and generally for manifesting undue haste to capitulate to the enemy.

The reading of the report was not concluded at the adjournment of the Court. The hearing of the remainder, together with other documents touching Bazaine's arrangement of the artillery and Commissariat at Metz will probably occupy the entire week, and the examination of witnesses will not begin until Monday next. The German Government at first refused to allow subpoenas for witnesses to be served in Alsace and Lorraine, but special negotiations have overcome its objections.

GREAT BRITAIN

RIOT IN CORNWALL

MADRID, Oct. 8. Firing was kept up all day yesterday between the Carthagena insurgents and the besieging troops. There is some fever in the Republican camp. THE DOMINION

FIRE AT TORONTO

TORONTO, Oct. 8. A fire occurred here this forenoon on the Esplanade destroying Walker Poole & Co's engine and boiler works, Leakes wharf and Irwin & Co's engine shop. A number of schooners lying at Leakes wharf were damaged. Loss heavy.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

MONETARY AFFAIRS

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.

MONEY. The money market worked a little closer to-day. The early transactions on call were at 7 per cent currency to gold but in the afternoon there was an advance to ¼ per diem and all late business was at higher rates. tation of the witness for truth and veracity is bad, he must first "lay the foundation" by answering "yes" to the question, "do you know what Mr A's reputation for truth and veracity is in the community where he resides?" Then comes the next question, "what is it?" Col. Godfrey's impeachers all persisted in jumping the first question and answering the second before it was asked. Col Godfrey puts the question, "do you know what his reputation is?" The witness, after the fullest instruction that he must "say yes or no," jumps and answers "It is bad." His honor, Judge Walton, undertook to train one of Col. Godfrey's men and says "Mr Witness, if I should ask you if you knew what is in that hat on the table, can't you answer me without first telling me what is in the hat?" The witness looked up to the bench in blank astonishment that a judge could imagine such a thing possible. And the Colonel's impeachers impeached themselves of want of intelligence to comprehend the legal distinction.

BEAVER ENGINEERING

WONDERFUL EXAMPLE OF BEAVERS' SKILL IN ENGINEERING—DETAILED DESCRIPTION OF A REMARKABLE DAM ACROSS SHIN POND STREAM

Our Orono correspondent writes the following concerning beavers:

Mr. Hector Morrison, of Orono, returned Monday afternoon from a trip up river whither he went to explore a chance to locate teams for the coming winter, and states that in crossing Shin Pond stream in Township No. 25, Range 7, he came upon a place where the water had evidently been dammed recently, so that it flowed back nearly a mile with an average depth of two feet. Following down the stream along its banks he discovered the cause to be the work of beavers, which had been done the previous week.

Curiosity led him to examine this structure and the work connected with it, when it appeared to be a solid dam, fifteen rods in length, made of alder bushes the size of one's thumb and two or more feet in length, carefully laid in and crosspiled, with a liberal supply of mud to fill the interstices and make it solid. This extended across the entire width of the stream, and was so completely level on the top that water was flowing over its entire length more than an inch deep. The bottom of the stream being generally rough and covered with mud and rocks, there was no difficulty in building the dam so that it would stand the rise of water which its building would cause, but upon the westerly end there was a place some four feet in length where the bottom was a smooth ledge. Mud and sticks would not remain on this, as the beavers seemed to know, for they went to the middle of the stream, took flat rocks there from about the size of the rim of an ordinary felt hat, and five to six inches thick, which they carried to the smooth ledge, laid them along in a direct line four feet in length, piling them up four rocks high, so that at that place the dam should be of uniform height with the rest of it. Upon the up stream side they plastered sticks and mud so not a drop of water would run through it, and in this way extended the dam across the ledge to the bank. Two or three feet from the easterly end of the stone part of the dam there seemed to them to be a weak place in it, which they made safe by taking two sticks of wood 5 inches in diameter and about nine feet long (one being green and cut by themselves and the other a dry stick cut by some lumbermen the previous winter) placing one end of each firmly against a solid place in the bank below the dam and the other ends, about two feet apart against the top of the dam in the weak place where they carefully imbedded them. Of course this bracing was to prevent a wash out when the water should rise. The animals had also felled two trees on the easterly end of the stream, one a white birch 5 inches, and the other a poplar 7 inches in diameter, and cut them into pieces about three feet long, and dragged them into the stream and sunk them above the dam, so the bark might be used for food during the winter season.

Should a person raise one of these sticks so sunk by them, to the surface of the water it would float as formerly on its exposure to the air, and no human being has the ability to cause it to sink at once but if not taken out of the water it sinks again readily on being dropped or let fall. Perhaps some of your numerous readers can tell us how this thing is done, and if so, will they not give us this information, and also tell us where there is another animal who has the engineering skill of the beaver.

SUPREME JUDICIAL COURT

(OCTOBER CIVIL TERM)

HON. CHAS. W. WALTON, Judge Presiding.
EZRA C. BRETT, Esq., Clerk of Courts
J. D. PULSIFER, Esq., Stenographer

Wednesday, Oct 8th. Howard I. Hawes vs William Bragg, et al.

Trespass quare clausum, at Hermon, August 1, 1870, and taking and carrying away plaintiff's horse valued at $150.

Defence—Hundertook to swap horses even with the plaintiff on his invitation at my house, in the dusk of the evening of May 7th, 1870. My horse was fifteen years old, unsound and balky. Plaintiff said his horse was sound and that a neighbor had just offered him two good horses and twenty dollars to boot. Relying upon that statement I accepted his offer, but the next morning discovered the horse I received to be worthless. I kept him about six weeks and then returned him to plaintiff, cancelled the trade, [illegible] my own horse. I made this [illegible] in the early morning because [illegible] to be seen returning the [illegible] in open day. On arriving at [illegible] house I found him in his door [illegible] and I had come for my horse, [illegible] had defrauded me out of he said, [illegible] the stable go and take him. After [illegible] from the stable, high words en[illegible] changed his mind and tried to prevent [illegible] the horse away, but I held [illegible] permission, took away my horse, [illegible] him his.

[illegible] defendant kept the horse twice as [illegible]. It was two o'clock at night [illegible] the horse from the stable. Our [illegible] up, my wife sick, waiting for [illegible] went out, supposing the doctor [illegible] but found the defendant with [illegible] of the stable in the act of car[illegible]. He did not notify me of [illegible] the other horse, but I found [illegible] condition near my house the [illegible].

There was conflicting testimony as to the value of the horse taken, some estimating it at [illegible] some $50, and some $150.

The Court instructed the jury in substance that the defendant's plea of the general issue [illegible] the breaking and entering, and [illegible] on the stand that he went upon [illegible] premises, the jury were bound [illegible] a verdict of guilty, and give at least [illegible] damages to the plaintiff. If the defendant had pleaded and proved a license, it would have been a full defense. The jury have a right to consider the evidence as to a license, and if they believe it they will return only nominal damages, if they do not believe it, they will return as damages the fair market value of the horse, and interest from the time of taking.

Verdict for the plaintiff, $112.10.

CHARGE OF THE "LONG" BRIGADE.

BY JOHN D WILSON

[The following parody on The charge of the Light Brigade was posted on the New York stock exchange on Saturday and was duly appreciated by the members]

One per cent, five per cent,
Ten per cent downward
Into the stock exchange
Rushed the six hundred
No time to reason why
No time to make reply
Sell! Sell! the only cry!
Into the Stock Exchange
Rushed the six hundred

Brokers to right of them,
Brokers to left of them
Brokers in front of them
Bellowed and thundered
But could not stem the tide
Bears could not run or hide
Few laughed but many cried
Into the Stock Exchange
Rushed the six hundred.

Oh what a sight was there
Arms lifted high in air
Tearing each other's hair—
Outsiders wondered!
Nothing would do but sell—
L wer the market fell
Who can the tempest quell?
Ha! for them thundered
Out of the Stock Exchange
Rushed the six hundred

Shut up the doors the cry—
"Stop not to reason why"
Banks will not certif
Some one has blundered
Ruined those who planned the raid
Ruined those whom fortune made
All have been plundered!
Save us from want and care
Cried the six hundred.

Closed were the doors that day
Closed on that fearful fray
Closed on that Saturday
When some one blundered
May it this lesson teach—
Go not beyond your reach
When all this motto preach
Friends hon t sundered
Back to the Stock Exchange
Go re ye six hundred

A MUSICAL DOG —There is in this city, a dog that can sing We state the fact unqualifiedly on the testimony of all the family of the gentleman who owns him. The animal in question is a large mouse colored grey hound, perhaps about six or seven years old His attempts at singing though they are certainly not very musical are unmistakable, and they have been observed by the family for the last two or three years He does not sing alone but when he hears certain members of the family singing, he joins in This is more particularly the case with one lady of the house, who if she begins to sing when the dog is anywhere about the place, is pretty certain to obtain a canine accompaniment If she is heard singing up-stairs, and the dog is shut out below he will not be quiet until he is admitted to the room where she is, when he will join in keeping very good time, and keeping—so we are assured—on the same key, rising with the singer to the higher notes in a kind of blended whine and howl, that is yet neither like the voice of a dog nor anything else. When he reaches a note too high for him he will stop and wait for the cadence of the song to reach the lower notes again In his raising notes he lifts his head as well as his voice When his owner enters the room he will suddenly stop, and not another note can be got out of him while his master remains In fact, he dislikes to have anybody present except the one with whom he sings —[Hartford Times.

TO REMOVE STAINS —If you have been picking or handling any acid fruit and have stained your hands, wash them in clear water wipe them lightly, and while they are yet moist, strike a match and shut your hands round it so as to catch the smoke, and the stains will disappear If you have stained your muslin or gingham dress, or your white pants with berries, before wetting with anything else, pour boiling water through the stains and they will disapper Before fruit juice dries it can often be removed by cold water, using a sponge and towel if necessary. Rubbing the fingers with the inside of the parings of apples will remove most of the stain caused by paring. Ink, also, if washed out or sopped up from the carpet with cold water immediately when it is spilled, can be almost entirely removed. Ink spots on floors can be extracted by scouring with sand wet in oil of vitriol and water. When the ink is removed, rinse with strong [illegible] water.

LAWS OF THE UNITED STATES.

Passed at the Third Session of the Forty-second Congress.

Convention between the United States of America and Denmark Naturalization Concluded July 20, 1872 Ratified January 22, 1873, Ratifications exchanged March 14, 1873; Proclaimed April 15 1873.

By the President of the United States of America

A PROCLAMATION

Whereas a convention between the United States of America and His Majesty the King of Denmark, relative to the naturalization of citizens and subjects of the two countries, was concluded and signed at Copenhagen by their respective plenipotentiaries on the twentieth day of July 1872 the original of which convention, being in the English and Danish languages, is word for word as follows

The United States of America and His Majesty the King of Denmark being desirous to regulate the citizenship of the citizens of the United States of America who have emigrated, or who may emigrate, from the United States of America to the Kingdom of Denmark, and of Danish subjects who have emigrated or who may emigrate from the Kingdom of Denmark to the United States of America, have resolved to conclude a convention for that purpose, and have named as their plenipotentiaries, that is to say the President of the United States of America Michael J Cramer minister resident of the United States of America at Copenhagen and His Majesty the King of Denmark, Otto Detlev Baron Rosenorn Lehn commander of Danebrog and Danebrogsmand, chamberlain His Majesty's minister for foreign affairs, &c &c &c

Who after having communicated to each other their respective full powers found to be in good and due form having agreed upon and concluded the following articles, to wit

ARTICLE I

Citizens of the United States of America who have become, or shall become, and are naturalized, according to law within the Kingdom of Denmark as Danish subjects, shall be held by the United States of America to be in all respects and for all purposes Danish subjects and shall be treated as such by the United States of America.

In like manner Danish subjects who have become or shall become, and are naturalized according to law, within the United States of America as citizens thereof shall be held by the Kingdom of Denmark to be in all respects and for all purposes as citizens of the United States of America and shall be treated as such by the Kingdom of Denmark

ARTICLE II

If any such citizen of the United States as aforesaid naturalized within the Kingdom of Denmark as a Danish subject should renew his residence in the United States the United States government may, on his application and on such conditions as that government may see fit to impose readmit him to the character and privileges of a citizen of the United States, and the Danish government shall not in that case, claim him as a Danish subject on account of his former naturalization

In like manner, if any such Danish subject as aforesaid, naturalized within the United States as a citizen thereof should renew his residence within the Kingdom of Denmark, His Majesty's government may on his application and on such conditions as that government may think fit to impose readmit him to the character and privileges of a Danish subject, and the United States government shall not in that case, claim him as a citizen of the United States on account of his former naturalization

ARTICLE III

If however a citizen of the United States, naturalized in Denmark shall renew his residence in the former country without the intent to return to that in which he was naturalized, he shall be held to have renounced his naturalization

In like manner if a Dane naturalized in the United States, shall renew his residence in Denmark without the intent to return to the former country, he shall be held to have renounced his naturalization in the United States

The intent not to return may be held to exist when a person naturalized in the one country shall reside more than two years in the other country
